

CleverBoard to the rescue in L'Aquila

Following the recent disaster in L'Aquila Italy (6 April 2009), the manufacturer of CleverBoard products were very moved to receive a call from the Italian Ministry Of Education via their Italian distributor from Milan for the use of several CleverBoards mounted on CleverTrolleys for the temporary classrooms for the children of L'Aquila.

The CleverBoard manufacturer was very pleased to donate this equipment to the people of L'Aquila. The Italian CleverBoard distributor donated a CleverTrolley and CleverBoard to the school. Even the freight to Rome was donated by Thomas International Freight.

The distributor installed and trained the teachers on the boards at no cost, using their local dealer from Edcom. This entailed a 100 km drive and through the worst of the damage to reach the outskirts of Pizzoli.

Keith Howard Smith, Export Manger for CleverBoard said: "We were very pleased to assist in any way. The main reason the Ministry requested CleverBoard was the robust nature of the board and the fact it could be used without power, and even without a projector, very useful in the region with unreliable power supplies".

Aplusk, de Benelux distributor for CleverBoard and other CleverProducts has great respect for this extraordinary initiative of one of its partners.
